

Watermill House Addition

Following the renovation of the main house, the addition of a new entry porch, screened in porch, and two car garage transformed the composition of the original house into a horizontal extension into the landscape. The addition is constructed of structural elements composed of mahogany and steel trusses and posts with cedar cladding on the exterior.